Ist Class cross bite dental

Patient age 10 years, dental cross bite on right side, skeletal Class I, lower midline deviation on right side, short labial frenulum. The malocclusion is characterized by contraction of the upper arch with reduced space for eruption of permanent teeth. The therapeutic sequence involves the following steps:

- motivation
- upper labial frenectomy
- elastodontic therapy

Conclusions

Elastodontic therapy with AMCOP appliances is able to solve skeletal and dental problems contextually; all this allows the functional recovery of correct occlusion with the guarantee of stability in the medium - long term being functional treatment and not orthodontic forcing.
